Alaska – Wilderness for beginners

Wednesday, November 17, 2021 by Annemarie Koelliker and Roberto Sabene

At La Longeraie, Morges 16h

The awe-inspiring and humbling nature of the far North of the United States cannot be tamed. It demands respect from its visitors as well as the willingness to be adventurous and bold. Nevertheless, Annemarie Koelliker and Roberto Saibene dared to venture to Alaska. They even treated themselves some comfort while on their journey! For four weeks they travelled by motorhome along empty highways and camped in vast forests. Despite being “beginners”, they quickly felt at ease and at home in the wilderness. Additionally, the climate was unexpectedly mild for the time of the year, so the two were treated by Alaska at its best.

The Multivision-Show will escort you through spectacular, dreamlike landscapes: glaciers towering over the ocean, impressive mountain ranges, idyllic lakes and a surprisingly rich flora. Many pictures are dedicated to the abundant wildlife such as black bears, moose, caribou and eagles, and also grizzly bears.

The talk will be followed by an aperitif.

CHRISTMAS DINNER

Saturday Evening, December 4, at Restaurant du Port de Pully

The harbor of Pully is also a nice place to take a stroll during the winter months. The restaurant is very popular in summer because of its terrace on the lake front. It is also a nice place inside and worth stopping when the terrace is closed. They have a good menu choice ... you will find out in the December Monthly.

Vaccination Certificate is required since September 13

If you are vaccinated but do not have a 'Certificat Covid' (Pass sanitaire), here is how you can obtain your certificate. Click on this LINK You may need it to visit exhibits, museums and restaurants.
